SLOSSON'S WONDERFUL GAME.

He Defeats Rudolphe, With an Average of Seventy-Five.

THE FRENCHMAN SCORES AN OPINION.

Heiser Makes an Easy Victim for Sexton.

The twenty-second game of the billiard tournament at Cooper Institute was played yesterday afternoon, William Sexton and John Randolph Heiser being the confestants. Having won the lead Sexton selected the spot ball and made 7 in his opening essay. cue, failed to count. John Randolph did not succeed in his second trial, and his adversary compiled 18 good spirits, replied confidently, and before he sat down 21 was his contribution to his string. Another 0 for William and 2 for John enabled the former to begin his fifth inning. In much better form than he had played on Monday the balls were gracefully moved around the table, and then, being sent to the rail, the nursing process was begun. They were quickly rolled down the side cushion, when, coaxing them out of the corner, a trip the extent of the bottom raft was made, and so on until 113 was the marker's call. The nest then broken. The player added 15 more, and retired with 123. The score stood—Sexton, 153; Heiser, 28. Randolph materially reduced the difference in his fifth essay, as working with more thoroughness than he had before displayed in public efforts, the result was a contribu tion of 79. Sexton was thus only 46 the best of the struggle. Minor additions carried the contest to the eleventh trial for each, when the buttons stood 217 NO ENTHUSIASM.

A lukewarm house up to this point looked upon the game. Devoid of especial brilliancy, except in the fairly earned long run of Sexton, there was nothing to cause enthusiasm. When twenty innings had been played the score had the aspect of a moderate amateur competition. "It makes me sick," said Heiser. The figures were almost enough to "weaken" a man of only moderate physique, as the record was 281 to 156 in favor of Sexton. Heiser pulled himself together in the twenty-third inning and himself together in the twenty-third inning and moved 13 on the string. He did much better shortly after, and pusified boldly toward Sexton's figures with a run of 126 points. When he failed to count one of the piatform spectators ground so loud that the house was convulsed with laughter. The buttons now stood Sexton 339, Heiser 302. From this time on John Randolph was "all at sea," while Sexton, drawing steadily away and making a series of brilliant open shots, won almost as he pleased in the thirty-minth liming by 233 points. Duration of game, two hours and twenty-seven minutes.

Following is the score:—

7, 1, 9, 9, 2, 13, 9, 5, 126, 9, 4, 1, 9, 1, 0, 1, 16, 2, 26, 1, 13—367.

Winner's average, 15 15-39; loser's average, 9 25-38.

RIDOLFHE BABLY DEFFATED.

George F. Slosson and A. P. Rudolphe came together in the evening and played the twenty-third game. The audience was not large. The Frenchman came into the half very late and blaffed the referee with the remark, "I vas here before." Ru accosted his adversary pleasantly, and then stringing for the lead he proved the best man. He merely broke the ice with a unit, and in taking his seat exclaimed. "Vell. can't help it, but we do ze best we can." Slosson reached 10 and quit. He rubbed his hands and complained of their being celd. A response of 29 was Ru's next effort. This led to 8 from George, who apologized by remarking, "I haven't got warmed up yet." Ru's string was sugmented by 15. With one or two open shots Slosson sent the balls slowly to the left rait, and an additional touch or two placing them as he wanted, he started down the cushion on a nursing trip that proved of no mean proportions. rati, and an additional touch or two placing them as he wanted, he started down the cushion on a nursing trip that proved of no mean proportions. The bottom rail was reached safety, and Marker Ellis called "50." Closely embracing each other the ivories made the journey to the right lower corner, and then being introduced to the long cushion on that side, the count went steadily on. Once round the table the buttons showed that the player had moved forward 139 points. Still he continued with precision and good judgment and did not tarry on the excursion he was evidently desirous of making. There was no cossation in the tireless, mechanical-like regularity of the player's stroke. Twice the circuit was made, and when the group was disturbed he had compiled 212. Shooting the cue straight as a boit against his ball the red sphere made a rapid journey across the green cloth, and then, rolling back to the old place, the rail position was again secured, the shot sliciting loud applause. Being carried to the right rashion it was found difficult to satisfactorily manipulate them, and at 206 the nest was once more separated. "He can't play on the right rail," was the criticism of an expert. The ivories would not longer be coaxed in that shape, and, with four other clicks of value, Slosson was compelled to sit down on a "font," the clear sighted Ru having observed him touch not longer be coxed in that shape, and, with four other clicks of value, Slosson was compelled to sit down on a "font," the clear sighted Ru having observed him touch the wrong ball. The announcement of "Slosson, 1981; Rudolphe, 36," was received with marks of appreciation. A quartet was the test the Frenchman could do, Slosson setting against it 16. Very brilliant execution followed by the latter, and though he could not accumulate more than 45, the run was fringed with shots that did justice to the cunning hands of the cueist. Slosson was evidently in the finest trim, and it seemed to be his purpose to do better in the way of an average than was credited him in his game with Sexton in the early part of the tournament. He continued his work with eagerness in the fifth liming, and once more finding an easy task to play the sushion he did so with good result. Not more than 15 were made, when Ru made a claim that the balls were "frozen," but it was disallowed.

The referee's decision did not suit the Prenchman, and when the opportunity occurred he plainly showed the house how he felt. It came soon, as when George had reached 70 the ivories again cluing together so closely the player was forced to admit they were "frozen" and asked the magner to spot them.

"Play on em! Play on em, George!" the Frenchman shouted in sarcastic tones.

"Ze same ting! Ze same ting as before!" he added.

Then, not obtaining a reply, Ru, bubbling over added.

Then, not obtaining a reply, Ru, bubbling over with excitement, walked to the end of the reporters neek, and taking up his hat, put it on his head to be certain that it was his, and quickly retracting his steps, held out the article of headgear to George, and shaking it, exclaimed, "Put ze balls in here, its all ze

A storm of hisses greeted the Frenchman's peculiar behavior, but, not abashed, he turned to the audi-ence and shouted, "Come take my place if you want to."

This ended the breeze, and the player continued, but when he had made 77 Ku broke out again, thinking there was a failure to count. "I made it," said the player, quickly.

"Guess not," shouted Ru.
"Oh are "it termed the referee."

"Ouess not," shouted Ru.
"Oh, yes," interposed the referce.
"Did he? I didn't see it," was lin's last shot, when e sat down. Still he was not satisfied, and to a fend in the next chair he turned and said;—
"Ze rait vili beat any kind of billiards, and zero is o mae to play against it. Zere is some science in caping ze bails on ze cushion, but to ze audience it most uninteresting." This criticism of Slosson's one relieved fit for a time.
Slosson retired at $2 points, a carcless movement ausing him to fail in counting. Only five inmings or played and the buttons were $36 to 85, in favor charge.

were played and the buttons were 386 to 85, in favor of deorge.

"Do you mean zat I shall not make any more?" naked itu as he went to the table for his fiert essay, "vell, I shall make one," he continued, and iolog so the house burst into loud langhter. He could only compile 5, and sat down saying, "Good luck, har" Slosson then added 16, when Ru scored 2. George, consequently, was not long idle, and again handling his cue, he quickly started upon another ran which netted him lit, the rail being the means whereby it was obtained. The game now stood, Slosson, 519: Rudolphe, 92. The latter had one more chance, but failed with 2. It was his last effort, as Slosson quickly succeeded in accumulating the required 81, when the marker cried, "600—zame!" The winner's average is 75, the same notch right of the tournament, Rudolphe was beaten 506 points. Time, Ih 13m. Pollowing is the score:—Slesson—10, 5, 270, 16, 82, 16, 117, 81—009. #### PEDESTRIANISM.

BARTEL'S SUCCESSORS.

At midnight last night Miss Millie Reynolds had walked 220 and Miss May Scott 268 quarter miles in as many consecutive quarter hours at Brewster Hall. So far neither has shown much fatigue, Miss Hall. So far neither has shown much fatigue, Miss Reynolds keeping up her jaunty step and Miss Scott maintaining her steady gait. The former during the afternoon and evening yesterday occasionally walked in her stocking feet, her shoes hurting her. Once or twice she had the shoes removed white on the track, the process of untying them exciting a lively interest. The relative position of the pedestrians is the same as at the beginning, the "Bouncer" being the favorite with the men and "Goody Sedstenesa" with the connoisseurs. This morning they will have accomplished one-half of Miss Bartel's record. Vesterday the attendance was good throughout the day, and last night the hall was crowded.

PARTIAL COLLAPSE OF A MATCH. Two of the three amateur pedestrians who started ut to make fame and fortune on the tanbark track at Mozart Hall, Brooklyn, have succumbed to the fatigue and struck their colors. The walk which John Perkins, Bat Brennan and Fred. Gross entered upon at 12h. 5m. Monday A. M. was to have been for six days and six nights, 450 miles to be cov ered, and the purse was $500 for the winner. Shortly before midnight of Monday Gross retired to his room, having made 61 miles and 6 laps, for the purpose of enjoying sadly needed repose. About an hour later Brennan, whose score was 59 miles, also retired to his apartment, but Perkins kept manfully moving along at a brisk pace, and scoring a fair record for himself. It was soon announced, however, that both Brennan and Gross had determined not to reappear on the track. Perkins, who B twenty-six years old, or thereabouts, appears to have better endurance, and, though it is monotonous business walking alone, he may keep the track to the close, and so make a record for himself. At three P. M. he had scored 112 miles. There were but few spectators at the Mozart during the day.

At 9h. 54m. last night Perkins had completed 121 miles.

At 7h. 6m. J. W. Shannon, of Brooklyn, began the ered, and the purse was $500 for the winner. Shortly

PIGEON SHOOTING.

A large number of the members of the Nassau Gu Club assembled at Dexter Park, Jamaica road, Long sland, yesterday afternoon, to compete for a "Parker" breach-loading gun. Thirteen members came to the score and each shot at seven birds. The weather was all that could be desired, and the birds were all fast flyers. Messrs. J. V. Bergen, Judge Spencer, W. A. Dunham and J. W. Powell killed spencer, W. A. Dunham and J. W. Powell killed six birds each. Then they agreed to decide the tie at three birds each. Mr. Dunham knocked over his three birds in good style and won the gun. Messrs. Bergen, Powell and Spencer each killed one. The champion gold badge given by the club for the year of 1878 to the member that succeeded in winning it the most times at the mouthly meetings was awarded to Mr. L. H. Smith, who captured it on three different occasions.

HORSE NOTES.

The horse upon which Stonowall Jackson was riding when he received the wounds which resulted in his death is now in the possession of his brother-in-law, Mr. Joseph Morrison, who lives at the old Mor-rison homestead in Lincoln county, fifteen or twenty miles from Charlotte, S. C. Glenlyon, Mr. P. Lorillard's imported stallion which arrived in the steamer Erin yesterday morning is about sixteen hands high, a very dark bay, with a star and strip in his face running down between his nostrils and a white fore foot on the near side The horse has a plain head, put awkwardly on a lengthy neck. His shoulders are very fair and his fore legs good. He is well rounded in the ribs, but his loins are not possessed of the muscular development necessary for fine proportion. He has fair thighs and hocks and very fine legs behind. One of his hind pasterns was badly damaged on the voyage, the hide being completely removed from the joint to the hoof, making a very ugly wound. Glenlyon is thirteen years old. He is very low in flesh, and, no doubt, appears to a great disadvantage from that cause, as well as the effects of a stormy passage across the Atlantic.

The South Carolina Jockey Club races commence to-day at Charleston. There will be three events, the first a mile dash between two-year-olds; the second a mile and three-quarter dash for all ages, and the third a hurdle race of two miles, over eight hurdles. The horse has a plain head, put awkwardly on a

PIGEONS ON EXHIBITION.

FOURTH ANNUAL EXHIBITION OF THE COLUM-BARIAN SOCIETY AT THE AQUARIUM.

The fourth annual exhibition of the National Columbarian Society was begun yesterday morning at auspices, and with every promise of success. For-merly exhibitions of this kind were of interest only to comparatively few people. What are termed "fancy pigeons" were appreciated mainly by the breeder or the importer, but since the "Annual seems to have become awakened to the beauties of 1,500 birds have been gathered together from various parts of the country, and, although classed under the general head of pigeon, so varied are their forms, plumage and characteristics that the casual visitor would suppose that many of them belonged to dis-

They all come, however, from the "rock pigeon" of Europe, the blue rock being noted among pigeon shots for its rapidity of flight from the trap. The main points of difference in the birds are in the form and size of the bill, the plumage of the head, the cartilagineous eye, wings and covers of the nostrils. the crop, the size, form, order and color of their feathers, the length and piumage of the feet, the power of flight, the bones of the head and numerous internal organs.
BIRDS OF PEATHER.

greatest interest, from a money point of view, cen tring in the latter. The pouters, however, never fail to draw a crowd. They are larger than the ordinary pigeon, dignified in bearing for a time, until suddenly they become puffed up, as it were, at some fancied insult, and then they swell out to within an inch of the bursting point. The other varieties consist of owls, barbs, short-faced timblers, trumpeters, fantails, turbits, swallows, jacobins, priests, magpies and nuns (the latter being placed in a row), Antwerps, bald heads, beards, runts, Berlins, starlings, spots, smells, moor caps, ices, frill backs, archangels, breasters, shew Antwerps and others.

Mhile the home bred birds entered for the numerous prizes offered by the society absorb the interest of those directly connected with breeding there are some choice specimens of foreign birds which attract no little attention. There are three pairs of "Antwerp Homings," imported by Mr. L. Waefelaer, which have a record of having flown home from distances varying from three hundred to six hundred will not arrive before the exhibition closes. The Nicobar pigeon is a rarity exhibited by Mr. Charles Reiche for the first time in this country. It has plumage like a parrot, a long collar or mane, and can make faster time, not through the air on its wings, but on the ground on its feet, than any other bird known.

About three o'clock yesterday afternoon, in accordance with the programme laid down, a flight of carrier pigeons took place. Four boxes containing forty birds each were brought out on the sidewalk and the covers taken off simultaneously. The wind was blowing sharply from the westward, but the birds rose as in one flock to the height of about one hundred feet and then separated as though seeking different directions. birds rose as in one flock to the height of about one hundred feet and then separated as though seeking different directions. A considerable number kept together, however, and circled round and round, widening the circle as they reached a greater altitude. An immense crowd of people witnessed the flight from Broadway, and the birds certainly presented a beautiful sight as with their wings flashing in the sunlight they circled higher and higher until finally they darted off to the westward, their destination being in New Jersey. Others of the birds have their homes in Albauy, Philadelphia, Baltimore and other cities, affl despatches will be sent to the Aquarium relative to their safe arrival.

NORTUNES IN PIGEONS.

Some of the birds on exhibition are worth almost fabulous sums, the prices mentioned below not being "fancy" but what have been actually refused by the owners. Mr. Andrew Scheld, of Brooklyn, shows the red pied pouter Centennial which took the first premium at the Centennial Exhibition. He has repeatedly refused $250 for his pet. Mr. P. C. Biegel has a dun carrier cock. When its mate was alive he refused for the pair $600. Mr. T. C. Gaddis, of Baltimore, has the finest collection of short faced tumbiors, several pairs being valued at $200 per pair. Mr. E. H. Moore, of Melrose, Mass., has a red barb, which ceas $60 to import, and Mr. Crawford, the secretary of the society, exhibits a magnificent collection of African owi, valued all the way from $25 to $100 per pair. He refused $60 yesterday for a white Arrican owi only three months old.

The awards will be made this afternoon, but the exhibition will probably remain open till Saturday.

SUSPECTED HIGHWAYMEN.

FOUR MEN STOP ONE OF THE CARS OF THE PLATBUSH HORSE CAR LINE.

As Robert Haywood, a conductor on the Flatbush avenue line of cars, was proceeding to the Fulton ferry with his car, a few minutes after twelve o'clock yesterday morning, it was suddenly stopped by four men, one of whom seized the horses by their heads and turned them aside, while the others proceeded to the platforms. The only persons on the car beside the driver and conductor were three women and John driver and conductor were three women and John Grady, the well known diamond broker. The latter was engaged in conversation with the conductor at the time, while his black satchel, which contained a small fortune in the way of jewels, was lying beneath a seat in the car. The driver and conductor were greatly excited at the action of the men, and one of the women fainted. Grady was also alarmed, and made a movement for his satchel, as he did so one of the men exclaimed, "Hallo, Grady, is that you?" and while the latter was replying the man at the horses heads released his hold, and, with his companions, disappeared in the darkness. The car then proceeded toward the ferry, and when it arrived opposite the Tunih precinet station honse, Mr. Grady, accompanied by the conductor and driver, entered the station and informed Captain McKellor of what had occurred. Roundsman Barrow, with a section of officers, was immediately sent in search of the men, and succeeded in capturing them on the road to Sheepshead Bay.

WHAT THE ACCUSED ALLINGE.

They made no resistance and expressed perfect willingness to go to the station house and explain their action. There they gave their names and residences as follows:—Peker McDermott, laborer, 185 Prospect sirect; James Kerrgan, pedler, 192 Johnson street; William Kelly, bartender, 48 Hudson avenue; James Fitzpatrick, bartender, 98 Hudson avenue; James Herrgan, pedler, 192 Johnson street; William Kelly, bartender, 48 Hudson avenue; James herrgan, bedler, 192 Johnson street; William Kelly, bartender, 48 Hudson avenue; head at the time of its occurrence they were walking to Sheepshead Bay to settle a wager of $5. Thinking that they heard some one cry "Stop the car," one of them seized the horses by their heads and brought them to a standstill. The prisoners were locked up for the night, and yesterday morning taken before Justice Bloom. As there was no charge of highway robbery against them they were held for intoxication. The police are chaesoring to prove their story of the walking cont

ONE MORE UNFORTUNATE.

Mary Tiernan, aged fourteen, was brought before Justice Murray by her mother, Mrs. Tiernan, of No. 144 Hester street, who asked that her daughter be sent to the House of the Good Shepherd on the ground that she had been missing from home for some time back and is failing into very bad habits. The girl said that she had been led to shame by an officer on the police force. The case will be investigated.

ABT STUDENTS' LEAGUE MONTHLY EXHIBITION. The Art Students' League is progressive and wide awake in all its work, but in no part of it are these awake in all its work, but in no part or it are those qualities more prominent than in the monthly exhi-bitions. As we have said many times before, there is always something instructive and artistically worth seeing at these displays of pictures, studies, blacks and whites, etchings and other art products. There is no repetition. Each monthly collection is totally different in character from the preceding one. The exhibition last evening was viewed by a large and interested gathering, the great majority of whom could appreciate and were capable of receiving instruction from what they saw. The rooms on the floor below the life class room, where the exhibitions usually take place, were used as galleries. The principal works of the collection were hung in the neatly usually take place, were used as galleries. The principal works of the collection were hung in the neatly and artistically decorated apartment which is used by the antique class, and the two adjacent rooms were filled with drawings.

Twenty-two striking and interesting studies, by A. H. Wyant, were grouped about one of the best pictures he has ever painted, "Scene Near Westport Harbor," It is a stretch of moorland, admirable in tone, under a masterly sky, full of motion, and showing where the cumuli have broken the clear blue between and through the fleecy fragmenta. The perspective is excellent and receives great value by the introduction of a little figure in the middle distance. Among the studies are wood interiors, rocky scenes and bits of landscape with expressive skies, here tremulous opalescent sunsets, and there remarkable for their fine qualities of light transmitted through cloud masses.

Near these works of Mr. Wyant were William R. O'Donovan's bas-relief of Mme. Blavatsky, one in bronze of Wimbridge, the artist, and his striking, incisive little bust of Winslow Homer. By these was a head of Mme. Blavatsky, by Thomas Le Clear, In the same room were a number of loans of S. P. Avery; a little single figure water color by Vibert; a seriously painted and poetic head of a little girl, by Gabriel Max, superb in modelling and in luminous flesh tones: photographs signed by Whistler of his pictures, "At the Piano," "The White Girl" and "Symphony in White," which are interesting, as so few have seen the originals; William M. Chase's picture of a sad eyed girl sitting in church, noticeable for the reality of its pallid fiesh tints, the despairing, weary look of the eyes and the rendition of the long, thin hands; an etching of Whistler, by himself; his portrait, by Fantin, and a study of a head, by Vibert, for his picture, "The Panter's Rest," owned by Jordan L. The Obed Baxter, which arrived in this port on the 3d inst. from Japan, brought a valuable collection of Japanese articles for the cabinet of Roanoke College, Virginia. The greater part of this collection was Virginia. The greater part of this collection was made and presented by Colonel and Mrs. A. C. Dunn, of Virginia, who have recently returned to this country after a residence of ten years in Japan. General Salgo, Minister of Education, on Earning that Colonel Dunn was making a collection for Roanoke College begged to add the handsome gift of thirty Japanese volumes and nine boxes of minerals from the Royal Museum in remembrance of his pleasant visit to the college at the commencement in 1876, when he was in this country as President of the Imperial Japanese Commission at the Centennial Exposition.

THE CRUSADES.

DR. LORD ON THE ORIGIN AND EFFECT OF THE WAR WAGED BY EUROPE AGAINST ASIA IN THE MIDDLE AGES.

Dr. Lord lectured on the "Crusades, or Europe against Asia," at Chickering Hall yesterday morning. The Crusades, said he, must have been the result of a widespread and extraordinary fanaticism. Popes may have fanned the Crusades, but they did not create them. Great monarchs assisted, but they were carried on by the people. At the close of the tenth century society was in a melancholy state. Feudal barons and priests shared the wealth of the nation, and squandered their substance in viotous living. War, pestilence and famine raged on every hand and crime was rampant. Despair seized upon the minds of men, and they feared that the end of the world was at hand. A general reaction took place from this state of affairs, and there was a great religious awakening, so profound that we cannot account for it by natural causes. The favorite form of penance was by pilgrimage to sacred shrines, What place more sacred than Jerusalem! So a universal desire seized the minds of Europeans to visit the Old Jerusalem as a means of reaching the gates of the New Jerusalem. When they reached Jerusalem they were fined by the Mohammedans and badly treated. They returned and told eraggerated stories of their persecutions. Popes and bishops mot and barlos swore. Indignation was the universal sentiment, and there was a united desire to punish the enemics of God and rescue the Holy Sepulchre from the infidels. The first act of the bloody war opens with a meeting of 400 bishops and 10,000 of the laity; multitudes shouted for the deliverance of Jerusalem. Thus began the Crusades. In a war extending over centuries we do not find one central figure like Gustavus Adolphus or Oliver Cromwell. The leaders in this war were unequal to stratery, which makes warfare a science. This boasted chivalry did not produce one general equal to Sciadin. stance in riotous living. War, pestilence and famine boasted chivalry did not produce one general equal to Saladin.

What were the results of the crusades on civilization? In the first place they arrested the Mohammedans. Nothing but this uprising could have prevented the encroschments of the Turks; Second, they greatly contributed to undermine and destroy feudal power. Third, they gave the people freedom and independence in commercial pursuits, and, fourth, they improved the public taste and increased the knowledge of the arts and sciences. Chivalry borrowed many of its beauties from Asia. The germs of civilization were scattered by the storms of passion through Europe. One of the truths learned was that no nation could be conquered that will be true to itself. Nations can defend themselves on their own soil against overwhelming powers. It is a monstrous crime to invade other nations even in the name of truth. Evil is ever rebuked by an overruling God. It must needs be that nations even in the name of truth. Evil is ever re-buked by an overruling God. It must needs be that ofiences come, but wee unto him through whom they come. Five millions of men perished miserably in the Crusades. Let no one justify war, said Dr. Lord, for it is the most atrocious crime perpetrated

MISSION WORK IN ALASKA.

Rev. Sheldon Jackson delivered an address on Alaska at a meeting of the Ladies' Board of Missions held yesteriay afternoon in the chapel of the Uni-versity Place Presbyterian Church, the object being to promote the establishment of a Woman's Home in Fort Wrangell. After describing the geography of Fort Wrangell. After describing the geography of the country and considering its resources Mr. Jackson spoke earnestly of the great need of Christian influence, particularly among the women, and urged the necessity of pushing the work already begun of establishing missions there. He had received during the day a letter from Mrs. A. B. McFariand, who is in charge of a school established at Fort Wrangell, containing an urgent appeal for help. Between $2,500 and $3,500 were necessary for the erection of a suitable building, and $1,000 had already been subscribed. The average cost of maintaining and educating the women there, he estimated, would be about $200 a year each until they would be able, by carning something with the needle or at housework, to reduce the expense, if not become self-sustaining.

STRIKE OF SILK WARPERS.

The warpers in the silk mill of Dexter, Lambert & Co., Paterson, N. J., have struck for an advance in wages, and formed a union in which they have been joined by the warpers in the mills of William Strange & Co., Pelgram & Meyer and other large manufacturors. Less than one hundred hands are involved at present. The warpers are shilled workmen, whose places cannot be supplied by new hands. After the material already prepared up to the point where the warpers deliver it to the further processes of manufacture shall be used up the mill of bester. Lambert & Co. will shut down. The silk operatives, stimulated by what they have learned of the present activity in the manufacture, are restive and full of dissatisfaction over the wages paid. A HenauD reporter who visited the mill of Dexter, Lambert & Co. yesterday was assured that the hands who have gone out were making from $2.50 to $3 a day, also that the only difficulty was that the same price—thiricen cenis per 100 threads—was demanded for work on the best italian silk, which is free from dirt and "mills," as that paid for work on the pocrest Chinese article. The price paid for work on the learned to the same price—thiricen cents per 109. A delegation of the strikers have waited on the mill owners, but as all are firm it is not thought that any compromise will be made. ers. Less than one hundred hands are involved at and Mr. Charles T. Waite, the commissioners ap-pointed by Judge Gildersteeve to inquire into the sanity of William L. Palmer, Jr., who on December sanity of William L. Palmer, Jr., who on December 23 last shot and killed Officer Asa II. Furniss, of the Fourteenth precinct, in the Metropolitan Hotel, held another session yesterday in the District Attorney's office. All the testimony already taken was read over by the commissioners, after which they agreed on a report inding from the esstimony, besides a thorough examination of the prisoner, that on the day of the shooting Palmer, the accused, was insone and not responsible for his actions. To-day the report will be presented to Judge Glidersleeve, who, in accurance with the statute, will commit the prisoner to one of the State lunatic asyjums.

INVESTMENT OF TRUST FUNDS.

CURIOUS DEVELOPMENTS BROUGHT TO LIGHT ON

LONG ISLAND BY AN INVESTIGATION. In Queens county the practice with the Courts for a great many years has been to place all trust funds in the hands of the County Treasurer for investment. Usually these moneys belonged to widows and minors. The Board of Supervisors appointed a spemade are not at all creditable to the officials who made the investments. The committee found pieces of property on which the money loaned exceeded by a half or a quarter its value. The investigation was thought to be necessary to quiet the talk that the moneys of the fund were being loaned as favors to politicians. In one case, in the town of Hempstead, $2,000 had been loaned on two lots of land which at no time were worth $1,000, and cannot be sold for $500 now. In worth $1,000, and cannot be sold for $500 now. In this case the treasurer, who made the loan to avoid exposure and a lawsuit, took an assignment of the mortgage and will bear the loss.

Suits have been commenced within a few days against G. Edward Carll, George W. Bergen and Charles A. Roe, all of them ex-treasurers who made loans, to determine the responsibility for the loss to several persons. Where loans are believed to have been made in good faith no suits will be commenced, as losses were to be expected, owing to the shrinkage in real estate; but in the suits commenced the contrary is believed to be the case. Treasurer Roe loaned $3,500 on the James T. Crary estate at Whitestone, and soon after released to the mortgagor a portion of the property, which was mortgaged again. Mr. Bergen, who succeeded Mr. Roe, released to the mortgagor another part of the estate, which he immediately mortgaged for $3,000, as shown by the records, leaving only a small portion of the estate, and part of that worthless meadow, to satisfy the mortgage of $3,000. It was foreclosed, and the remaining property sold for $400, not enough to pay the expenses, and the whole amount of the investment was lost to the trust fund. The bidder now refuses to take the property because the overdue taxes are more than the amount of his bid. Mr. Bergen and Mr. Roe are sued for the full amount.

bid. Mr. Bergen and Mr. Roe are sued for the full amount.

The suit against ex-Treasurer Carll is in the fore-closure of the hotel property of Jacob Eivens, at Rosslyn. There had been loaned on the property by a former treasurer $7,000, and Mr. Carll took a second mortgage for $1,000. He foreclosed the first mortgage as treasurer, without any regard to the second mortgage, and the property was sold for $4,000, leaving a deficiency, including accrued interest and expenses, of $5,217.45. Out of the $4,000 paid for the property the referee paid Mr. Carll the amount of the second mortgage, and this suit is to compel him to pay back that sum for the benefit of the persons who owned the first mortgage. The report of the Supervisors' special committee will make an ugly showing.

SENTENCED FOR LIFE.

Isaac Perlstein, who was recently convicted of tenement house No. 11 Ludlow street on the night of November 10 last, was yesterday at the bar of the Court of General Sessions on a motion in arrest of judgment and for a new trial. It may be ramem bered that the prisoner was jointly indicted with David Freeman, Charles Bernstein and Joseph Levy for firing the premises in question in order, as was claimed, that they might receive the insurance money, the apartments having been hired by Levy. The parties had long been suspected of incendiarism, and, on the night mentioned, Perlstein, Bernstein and Freeman were seen to leave East Broadway with a basket and afterward Essex Perlstein, Bernstein and Froeman were seen to leave East Broadway with a basket and afterward Essex street with a demijohn. The three men then entered the apartments of Levy, who was absent at the time. In about fifteen minutes the fire broke out, and on investigation it was found that clothing, thoroughly saturated with kenosene, was scattered over the floor, while several distinct and separate fires were discovered in different parts of the room. The trial of Perlstein lasted five days, and, although eleven of the jurors were for prompt conviction, a verdict of guilty was not rendered for two hours. The prisoner heard the announcement with stolid indifference. During the trial, and when called to the witness stand, he pretended that he could not speak English, but his actions yesterday indicated a different state of facts, as during the arguments of his counsel he frequently made suggestions and listened with great carnestness to the points raised in his favor. Assistant District Attorney Rollins opposed the motion, which the Judge denied, after stating that he had given the matter the most careful attention. Perlstein was then asked to state whether he had anything to say way scatence should not be pronounced against him. He immediately rose to his feet and said he had seen Mr. Sheldon, the Fire Marshal, talking to some of the jurors and that Mrs. Perlstein had also seen him talking with them at recess during the trial. The groundlessness of the insinuation being apparent no reply was vouchsafed.

After addressing the prisoner on the enormity of his crime Judge Cowing said:—"The sentence of the Court is that you be confined in the State Prison for the term of your natural life at hard labor."

The prisoner received his sentence unconcernedly, and having been manueled, was conveyed to the Tombs. Bernstein, one of the codefendants, will be tried to-day in the Court of Oyer and Terminer.

day. Only President Mott and Aldermen Carroll, Perley, Finck, Strack, Kiernan, Robert Hall, Jacobus, Morris and Roberts were present, and the President amounced that there was not a quorum. The Board, after waiting a short time, adjourned until Tuesday next at two P. M. THE CITY DEBT.

Comptroller Kelly's monthly report of the city debt shows that on December 31, 1878, the not bonded debt was $107,466,527 99. On January 31, 1879, the debt was $107,487,215 87.

SCHOOL TEACHERS' SALARIES.

The Brooklyn Board of Education yesterday resolved upon a reduction of the salaries of the principals of public schools. Those who have been receiving $2,700 will now receive but $2,400. The $2,200 salaries were cut down to $2,000. The salaries of music teachers were also reduced, and one of the music teachers was discharged. A total saving of $16,011 was effected in the salary account by the action of the Board.
